The Tudors - The Reformation. Loading... The Reformation began when a German named Martin Luther criticised the power and practices of the Catholic Church. In 1517 he listed 95 grievances against the Catholic Church and nailed them to the door of the church in Wittenburg. The Pope was very cross and excommunicated him.

Christopher Haigh - NNDB

Traditionally, studies of the Tudor Reformation have been solidly Whig in emphasis, suggesting that protestantism won an easy and early victory in England just as in Ireland it was resolutely resisted from its first imposition.¹ Yet if Irish historians have charted resistance to reform where English historians have concentrated on its early successes, some more recent reappraisals of protestant progress in
